Morse Industries Offers New Glass Rail and Shower Product Lines at Glassbuild 2009

Kent, WA –August, 2009 – Morse Industries, a national supplier of extrusions and metal components for the glazing industry, announces two new product lines to be debuted at Glassbuild America 2009. Among the new products featured are the PanelGrip™ Dry Glaze Glass Rail System and an expanded Frameless Shower System product line.

Morse Industries new PanelGrip™ Dry Glaze Glass Rail System uses a base that is 30% lighter than traditional base shoes. This system allows users to quickly assemble structural glass railing without messy fillers or special tools making installation a snap and resulting in significant savings in both labor and shipping costs.

Morse Industries newly expanded frameless shower products showcase the natural beauty of glass using a European style header & connector, as well as hinges, door pulls, and glass clamps in all the latest finishes.

“At Morse we pride ourselves on creating product solutions. While we offer a full complement of industry standard items, we can also provide custom solutions through our “Value Added” program,” stated Susan Fleury, Marketing Manager. “Through this program we work with customers to design a product specific to their needs, including any additional fabrication, assembly or packaging..”
